

Ollie and Bertie

They go through the seaside town, passing the people out walking and shopping. But he feels lonely without his friend Bertie !

« Look at the sea » says Ollie to the children, and they arrive near the beach.

The children happy, leave their seats, and shout all together to Ollie « It's very nice, thank you, Ollie! » .

Then, they leave the bus, run to the beach and start to play on the sand. They are so happy ! It is a nice day for them.

Ollie is near the beach, amongst all the buses and coaches, but he feels so lonely without his friend Bertie. All the other buses are in groups, and they talk to each other, but not with the poor Ollie.

As Ollie stand there, all alone, listening to the laughter of the children coming from the beach, he hears the familiar sound of his friend's engine. He looks up, and he is happy to see coming towards him : his friend Bertie.

"Nice to see you, Bertie" says Ollie,

« Nice to see you too Ollie ! Two children miss your bus that is why I take them in mine to rejoin you. So all the children can play together on the beach and put their feet into the sea. »

The two friends are laughing because they are joyous to be together ; they have a lovely day, they feel the fresh salt air blowing over their roofs, and they watch the seagulls playing in the blue sky, over their head, and watch the little waves dancing over the blue sea.

It is time to go back to the town and they travel together, happy.

Ollie and Bertie are back in the garage, Sam put the light down and they go to sleep.
